This webinar is designed for all health care professionals in Los Angeles County—particularly those providers who care for women who are pregnant or trying to become pregnant and those who care for patients presenting with illness following travel. Zika virus outbreaks in the Americas and elsewhere pose a potential risk to travelers, particularly pregnant women. Experts in public health and obstetrics and gynecology will share current information on Zika virus disease, implications for travelers and pregnant women, diagnostic testing, and what can be done to reduce the risk of transmission. Learn what resources your local health department can provide regarding education, testing, and consultation.
